

Why is it that Government is continually pulled in to regulate (ie. stifle) the use of technology to assure those peddling old (inferior) solutions are not affected by these changes.

This mentality flies in the face of what has made America great! We are continually falling behind the rest of the world in being the technological leader because our lawmakers are too concerned about upsetting the constituents (their likelihood of re-election) and not letting the marketplace decide what belongs.

Please take your cues from the founding fathers of our government, and make every effort to minimize the stifling effect of "over-governing" our country!

Local information on the XM radio broadcast stream is spectacular. It is what the consumer (ie. the people) wants! And if that is not the case, they will vote with their $$$ and the outcome will be what the consumer (the people) wanted.

---

David G. Foster